The Agrarian History of England and Wales The volume includes a study of the marketing of agricultural produce in the period 1200-1500, detailed analyses of the movements of prices and wages in the countryside, a review of peasant rebellions and discontent centred on the revolts of 1381, and a chapter devoted to rural building in England and Wales. MANUSCRIPTS AND NOTES ON BEDFORDSHIRE COLLECTED FOR ... v, of the agrarian history of england and wales, 1640-1760. Miss Margaret Midgley collected the documents for vol. IV, 1500-1640, and Dr Stephen Porter for volume V, 1640-1750. The Agrarian History of England and Wales: Volume VII ... The Rural History of England and Wales would probably be a more accurate title, since a large portion of the text discusses topics that are related to rural history, but not to agriculture per se. Chapter 18 discusses non-agricultural industries located in rural areas, and Part VI discusses the geology and ecology of the countryside. This broad scope seems to have been a conscious choice ... The Agrarian History of England and Wales: Volume 3, 1348 ... The proposal for a series of volumes studying the agrarian history of England and Wales was first made in 1956, but, given the size of the project, it took some time for Cambridge University Press to publish the series. This review is of the third volume, published in 1991 and covering the period from the Black Death to the turn of the sixteenth century. There are over a thousand pages in total, with nine chapters, seventy-six sub-chapters, and many figures and tables. Edward Miller, the ...
