It is not a replacement for Haber's classic treatment nor is it intended to be. It is, however, an excellent complement to the relatively few published studies of the development of the chemical industry during the late 19th and early 20th cen-turies. The references from the various Spain's Chemical Industry from the 19th Century to the Present Spain's chemical industry in the late 19th century lagged behind those of its European neighbors and the United States. Among the constraints to growth was a lack of capital investment in technology by the Spanish govern-ment, which necessitated the industry's licensing of foreign patents. For example, a dynamite factory built in Bilbao, Spain, in 1872 employed a process developed by ... The chemical industry during the nineteenth century; a ...
